

Increase ^{Your} Quality of Life

Do you plan to work or return to work?

Work is a very big part of our lives. We work to earn money for our basic needs. Work also gives us a sense of pride and a feeling that we are doing something good. Vocational rehabilitation programs help people with ESRD keep working or return to work.

How do you sign up for vocational rehabilitation?

- Ask your dialysis social worker about vocational rehabilitation today.
- The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) will contact you and make an appointment.

Your vocational rehabilitation counselor will:

1. Ask you about your health to make sure you are able to participate.
2. Set goals to help you get ready to participate.
3. Provide counseling and help you choose work that you will be able to do.

Who should apply to OVR?

You should apply if:

- You have a disability. (ESRD is a disability.)
- Your disability causes problems in preparing for, getting, or keeping a career.
- You want to work.

How do you get started?

Ask your social worker for more information about services. Or, call the OVR District Office nearest to where you live.
